

Dear Procrastination,

You have been with me my whole life,
stayed so close, you've been better than a wife.
I met you so young, though distant we stayed,
not till university, such a big part you played.
In dark times and boredom you kept me sane,
filling my life with such joy of the inane.
To you now I want to show my appreciation,
I celebrate your being with joy and jubilation.
I'll plan a big party and invite everyone we know,
and everyone's love for you will grow and grow.
Get right on this I will, and do it with glee,
but first I just need to check Facebook and have a cup of tea...

Hehehe... just so you know...

Procrastination was cheating on you the whole show!

He and I have been having a wonderful love affair,

Endless movie hours and dress-ups in front of the mirror!

Sorry to be the one to break it to you. X

I thought as much, the dirty old man,
to these activities, I enforced no ban.
So generous is he, to give time to all,
ensuring we all have the chance to "drop the ball".
Tempting it is to take him as my own,
stopping interaction, and confiscate his phone.
But for sure this plan works against me,
for without his help, huge successes you'll all be.
So share him I shall with you and all others,
all of my friends, sisters and brothers.
